	This final degree project is based on the gender employment discrimination. First of all, I have realized a descriptive analysis taking into account the social level of the historical background until nowadays, to reach the concept of gender employment inequality, being women the worst considered at this point. For this reason, I have assessed different data, documents, and statistical tables that prove this reality and reinforce the statements described along this essay. In this document I present the main differences that exist nowadays in the labour market; inequalities in Europe, Spain and Navarre. These problems have as a consequence economical, social, familiar, healthy and promotional work aspects; being the equality plans a strand to improve by the responsible entities in charge of promoting a equal ,fair and real work.
