	This projects describes the Directorate General for Regional and Urban Policy as part of a European Commission tool for the development and implementation of regional projects to help fight the existing inequalities between the regions of the European Union members. Its structure and procedures are explained, as well as the payment methods and the available budget for the current programming periods. The most relevant projects carried out in Spain are listed. How the Commission launches the necessary contracts for the projects are also explained, and to see in more detail how these contracts work a specific contract between the Directorate and a consortium created by everis-Unisys is described, which all together finally contribute for the main objective of helping the economic growth and job creations of the regions.
