Globalización, as well as the technological development has brought the apparition of new financial mechanisms and systems. Together with this, part of the society is trying to pursue a decentralized system which enables sellers and buyers to trade without a central bank or single administrator. Along the journey the most veteran systems have had to learn to coexist and survive with the newest financial systems, in order to satisfy human needs.

The main goal of this report is to have a better understanding of what cryptocurrencies are and specially Bitcoin. For that many diverse areas have been carefully studied and analyzed from a rational perspective and a comparison between prices in bitcoin and Euros, as well as, dollars has been carried out.
